Important reasons to develop your pastor's book budget:

HIGHER COSTS

Many pastoral book budgets have remained stagnant over the last 5 years, even as the cost of needed resources has seen a noticeable increase in price. Often, pastors find they cannot purchase the books all of the books they need with their existing budgets.

MOVEMENT TOWARD BIBLE SOFTWARE

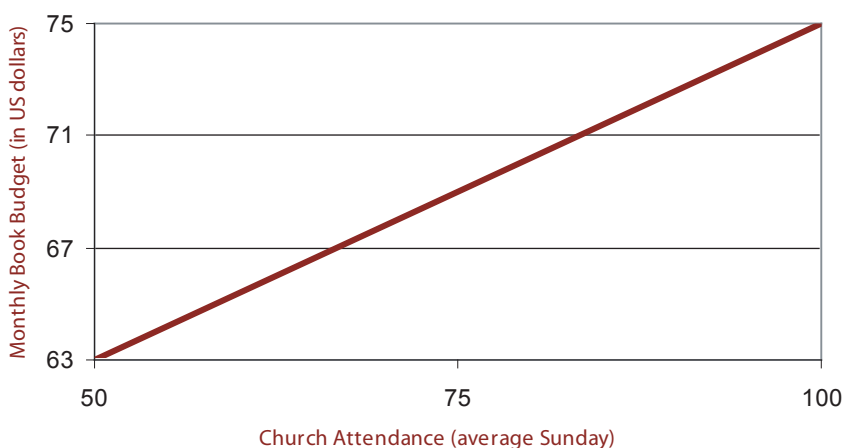

Over half of pastors with book budgets project they will spend 40% or more of their book budgets on software or electronic books in the next two years. Purchasing Bible software may seem intimidating at first because of cost, but by developing a book budget, pastors and churches can invest with confidence in a tool that will save time and provide immense benefits for pastoral studies.

GROWING CHURCHES

Pastors of growing churches often face increased demands on their time and important new responsibilities. Churches should provide the means for pastors to succeed; this includes an adequate, appropriate pastoral book budget.
